Foreword

The role of National Libraries in ensuring universal and equitable access to information continues to be a cornerstone in the development of a knowledge society. A National Library faces many challenges in ensuring that the published heritage of its country is acquired and preserved for all to use. An important vehicle in assisting National Libraries meet this responsibility is legal deposit and National Union Catalogues (NUC).

UNESCO has long been pre-occupied in developing appropriate information storage and retrieval systems, as well as enhancing the national capacities to manage and operate the system. However, the advent of the information age has raised new issues, and information and knowledge are the primary factors of change.

The preparation of the NUC is one of more activities being undertaken under the project on the "Reorganisation of the Nepal National Library in support of Literacy" financed by DANIDA (the Danish International Development Agency) and executed by UNESCO.

The second volume of the NUC has brought together, in the spirit of resource sharing more than 17 libraries to work together as a network. Moreover, in working together in this project, the library staff of these institutions has been significantly exposed and has broadened their perspective in terms of the vital roles of libraries and information in education and development.

The information age is here and the rate of change in human society is accelerating. This change is ongoing and pervasive, affecting all people, institutions and societies. The Nepal National Library and UNESCO are ready to follow the trends by the future publishing of the NUC as a CD-ROM in addition to the hard copies. However, UNESCO, jointly with DANIDA, takes pride in being able to contribute to the development of library and information services in the country by presenting this printed copy of the second volume of the NUC.

Preface

There are more than 600 different types of libraries in Nepal. About 75 percent of the libraries are located inside Kathmandu valley. Many libraries do not have standard catalogue system. Those having manual card catalogue are not updated regularly. Others having automated catalogue systems could be counted in the dozens.

It is a universal truth that each nation should optimise the use of its limited scarce resources. It is also true that there is not a single nation in the world that can procure each and every item published in the world. The resource sharing concept, therefore, is very important for the developing nations to save the valuable foreign exchange. Likewise different kind of users should be able to locate the valuable literature available in different libraries to save their valuable time. It is the duty of the library and information professionals to compile a union catalogue which could show which library has what literature published about Nepal. The output that was first published in 1997 served various users in Nepal and abroad. The interest shown by our many valued users aspired us to published a second volume of the union catalogue, which you are now holding. The five year project (1994-1999) entitled Reorganization of Nepal National Library in Support of Literacy Programme funded by DANIDA and executed by UNESCO has helped us a great deal in publishing this volume.

Thanks go to all the co-operating libraries and information centres providing data from their database without which we could not even imagine this catalogue. We are sorry for not being able to include the manual data provided by the sister libraries. We promise to include that data in our next volume. Mr. Damodar Adhikari used the CDS/ISIS once again to merge, compile and edit the data collected from different cooperating libraries, and also did the duplicate checking carefully.

The field tags were selected based on Common Communication Format (CCF) to make it compatible with other international bibliographic databases. In our previous volume, the Nepal National Union Catalogue (NUC) include all the records about Nepal published in English language regardless of the place of publication. Records were also included written by the Nepalese author regardless of the subject. In this volume we have included the records entered in Roman which was originally published in Nepalese language.

The main catalogue has been organized alphabetically by subject descriptor with the author and title indexes provided at the end with their respective NUC record numbers.

This second volume of the NUC has 6,576 records collected from co-operating libraries. We hope that the NUC is useful to the research workers, decision making authorities, students and library staff. The Nepal National Library expresses its gratitude to all individuals and institutions who have contributed directly or indirectly in bringing this volume into existence. We are also grateful to the Tribhuvan University Central Library (TUCL), which has contributed almost half of the data. Similarly, we would like to thank the Central Forest Library (CFL), Agricultural Projects Services Centre (APROSC) Library, The Royal Nepal Academy of Science and Technology (RONAST) Library, Water and Energy Commission Secretariat (WECS) Documentation Centre, International Centre for Integrated Mountain Development (ICIMOD) Library, United Mission to Nepal (UMN) Library, and United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) Library.

We are grateful to Regional Adviser Dr. Susanne Ornager and Ms Delia E. Torrijos the ex-regional adviser of the Principle Regional Office for Asia and Pacific (PROAP) of the UNESCO at Bangkok for financial support to compile and publish this publication.

In a Catalogue of this size occasional errors may occur. We welcome all kinds of suggestions and comments. We will include such suggestions in future volumes.

How to use this NUC

All the records are classified according to the selected subject headings approved by the gathering of senior librarians of Nepal. The headings are selected from different thesaurus covering wide range of disciplines. The records under in one heading are again arranged alphabetically. The NUC number found in every record is simply the serial number or record number used in this volume. The acronyms of the holding libraries are listed below.

Apart from the records not having place of publication and name of publishers, some records like theses or extracts from journals also show s.l. and s.n. The records transcribed into English from Devanagari are often difficult to read. Such transcription is done by the respective libraries. Records of some libraries strictly following AACR2 do not have personal or corporate authors. Authors with pseudonyms and real name are given in the manner as they appear in the record.
